Grey Dawn Counter Attack Splits Southern Alliance Heavy fighting rages in Alliance Territory

After suffering serious setbacks last month the Grey Dawn faction has counter attacked against the Southern Alliance consisting of the Molteni, Partido De Unidad (PdU) and Nacional Unidos Democratica Estados (N.U.D.E.). The forward positions occupied by the N.U.D.E. At Ganner were hit by a mixed armoured and Infantry force well supported by artillery. The village lays on the supply lines to the North for the N.U.D.E. Faction and the successful attack by the Grey Dawn effectively cut off the defenders from the rest of the country. An airmobile attack on Basghia to the North which secured the almost undefended village for the Grey Dawn makes the recovery of the position almost impossible. With forces trapped in the North with badly depleted supplies it seems that there is little hope that the situation can be recovered.

It seems that the Grey Dawn have found an ally by the name of Black

Jason's Bit

Hi, Work goes on with the turn assistance programme. Its a lot more difficult than it looks but I have made good progress. Hopefully I will trial it with a few players in a month or so.

The Grey Dawn show that even if you are down you don't have to be out. With a new ally their recovery has been swift. It seems that studying the map has revealed a decisive weakness in their enemy.

I have tried to keep turns going out as fast as possible but family illness has slowed things a little.

Until next month Jason.

Flag. This unheard of faction seems to have been building in the West and advancing slowly eastward. Their first action has been against the PdU at Sanitra, where a company sized Infantry force with three tanks supporting entered the village after breaching the minefield defending the West of the location. The small force defending managed to inflict some losses but were overrun. The Black Flag forces immediately dug in and a further force of similar size passed through them to hit at Milianma, where after some heavy fighting the attacks defeated the PdU garrison. The advance halted there but it can only be because of logistical problems.

Black Flag has also carried out an airstrike against suspected Molteni positions at Bisdal. It is suspected that the target was an airbase but this attack was based upon faulty intelligence. The industry of the Molteni village suffered heavy damage from the high explosive and the aircraft returned to base undamaged.

Creeping Death have advanced into the Government Forces area of Fekensa where they clashed with the defenders. A small action was fought with several squads and light artillery and the Government Forces were forced to withdraw. The Creeping Death advanced further to strike at the Government Forces as they fell back into Selbera and routed them capturing the village in the process.

The Centre of Internal Aggression (CIA) seem to have decided to broaden their geographical position by advancing Westward to take Henna Va, a lightly defended Government Forces base. Two squads of Militia were no match for the regular forces platoon and after a brief firefight the village was cleared.
